The Australian Mental Health Outcomes and Classification Network (AMHOCN) invite you to participate in a state forum that will provide an opportunity for WA consumers, carers, clinicians and service managers to share ideas and explore how mental health information, including outcome measurement, can be used to ensure transparent and accountable mental health services, focussed on ongoing quality improvement.

The forum will look at how mental health information can be used by consumers to understand treatment options, by carers to help them understand the outcomes that can be expected, by clinicians to inform their clinical practice and by service managers to review the performance of their services.

If you wish to attend, please complete the registration form by going to <http://amhocn.org> and following the links.

Places are limited so register early!
